A Contemporary Approach to Substance Abuse and Addiction Counseling

A Counselor’s Guide to Application and Understanding

Ford Brooks and Bill McHenry

AMERICAN COUNSELING ASSOCIATION
5999 Stevenson Avenue
Alexandria, VA 22304
www.counseling.org
Table of Contents

About the Authors: v
Acknowledgments: vii

Chapter 1 | Drug and Alcohol Counseling: An Introduction: 1
Chapter 2 | Diversity Issues in Substance Abuse Treatment: 11
Chapter 3 | Types of Drugs and Their Effects: 35
Chapter 4 | Assessment, Diagnosis, and Interview Techniques: 65
Chapter 5 | Continuum of Nonuse to Addiction: A Biopsychosocial Understanding: 93
Chapter 6 | Treatment and Treatment Settings: 113
Chapter 7 | Developmental Approaches in Treating Addiction: 127
Chapter 8 | Family and Addiction: 143
Chapter 9 | Grief and Loss in Addiction: 155
Chapter 10 | Group Counseling and Addiction: 163
Chapter 11 | Relapse Prevention and Recovery: 191
Chapter 12 | Spirituality and Support Groups in Recovery: 209
Chapter 13 | Addictions Training, Certification, and Ethics: 221
Chapter 14 | The Importance of Counselor Self-Care: 241

References: 247
Index: 265
About the Authors

Ford Brooks, EdD, LPC, NCC, CAC, is an associate professor in the Department of Counseling and College Student Personnel at Shippensburg University of Pennsylvania. He coordinates the Clinical Mental Health Program as well as Practicum and Field Internships for the Counseling Department. Ford provides counseling, supervision, and training services to clients, supervisees, and agencies/schools in the South Central Region of Pennsylvania.

He received his doctorate in counseling from The College of William and Mary, his master of science degree in rehabilitation from Virginia Commonwealth University (with specialization in alcohol and drug counseling), and a bachelor of arts degree from the University of Richmond in psychology. Ford has been a professional counselor for over 23 years, working primarily with clients who suffer from addiction and co-occurring mental disorders. He has worked in hospital, inpatient and outpatient clinics, private practice, and university student affairs settings. Much of Ford’s clinical work and writing has focused on relapse prevention and spirituality issues in addiction.

Bill McHenry, PhD, LPC, NCC, is an assistant professor of Counseling and College Student Personnel at Shippensburg University of Pennsylvania. He is the director of Growing Edges, which is the Shippensburg University Community Clinic. His doctorate is in counselor education from the University of South Dakota. He has been a professional counselor for 14 years. His professional experiences include working with clients (individuals, groups, couples, and families) with substance abuse/addiction issues in schools, universities, rehabilitation programs, mental health agencies, and college counseling centers.
Acknowledgments

I (Ford) would like to thank Carolyn Baker for her work with this project and belief in our mission: to educate counselors on alcohol and drug issues. Her editorial comments were significant and useful in our revisions. Additionally, I would like to thank Susan Klender for her copy edits, Catherine Brumley for her editorial assistance, and Bonny Gaston for production and cover design. I would also like to thank our reviewers for the time and energy they gave to provide us constructive feedback. To my friend and colleague, Bill McHenry, I am eternally grateful for your help in getting this project off the ground and co-constructing a meaningful text. Without you this project would not have happened. Heartfelt thanks go to Dr. Jill Schultz for her feedback on preliminary chapters. Her encouragement and compassion were invaluable to the spirit of this book. Many thanks to brother Andrew Brooks for allowing me the space to write initial drafts of the text in his Forest City, Maine, abode; Marty and Linda Kurdt for their continual support with this project; and last but not least, to my wife Kathryn for her patience and endless sacrifice. Bill and I want to thank our graduate assistants Tomomi Kikkawa, Becky Eby, and Isaiah Varisano for their help in preparing the revised manuscript.

I’ve had the pleasure of working with many counselors and teachers over the years who have, in their own ways, contributed to this book and deserve recognition: Mary Moyer, Jay Douglas, Jay Maynard, Dennis Holman, Robert Johnson, Bill McDowell, Donnie Conner, Michael Weldon, Kathy Benham, Ron Forbes, M.D., Marcia Lawton, Charles Matthews, Father Martin, Bill Maher, Peter Coleman, M.D., Jim Leffler, Dan Evans, Shirley Near, Carolyn Carver, and Perry Campanella. Last, but certainly not least, I would like to thank the students, supervisees, and clients who have been so willing to share their journeys with me. It is for you this book was written.

I (Bill) would like to thank our editorial team, especially Carolyn Baker for believing in this project, supporting our work, and making the process smooth and professional through every turn. To the reviewers of our work, thank you for your insightful suggestions, clear direction, and respectful frames. You made our book better in many ways.

Thank you to my family for your support, guidance, and the peace you continue to provide in my life. Finally, I want to thank Ford for the opportunity to create this meaningful and important book. Throughout the process I was in constant awe of your patience, skill, knowledge, and respect for both our readers and the clients we serve.