Society And History: Essays

Sylvia L Thrupp

This essay will provide evidence that television is bad for our society. Violence is one problem in today’s society. Television programs and the movie industry promote and depict violence. Throughout history, men have traditionally been regarded as superior to women in both power and status. A common view in most societies was that daughters should obey their fathers and wives should obey their husbands, and this view still holds true in most.