Yankton’s Jacobs To Attend Library Leadership Institute

Yankton’s Jacobs, director of the Yankton Community Library, was recently named as one of five recipients of the 2012 Midwest Library Leadership Institute (MWLLI) fellowship.

The fellowship, sponsored by the South Dakota Library Association, recognizes one mid-career librarian in each of the states of South Dakota, Utah and Wyoming. Its purpose is to promote the development of the public library system as a vehicle for learning, providing significant educational and networking opportunities.

Only three other libraries in South Dakota, Lincoln and Vermillion, have hosted MWLLI fellows.

Jacobs has been with the library since March 1, 2002. She currently serves on the advisory board for the River City Public Library, South Sioux City, Neb., as well as several library boards and organizations.

The fellowship will be held from Sept. 7 to 18. It will be a comprehensive leadership training program aimed at increasing librarians’ networking opportunities.

To learn more, contact the Yankton's Community Library at 665-9461.

This Oreck weighs just 9 pounds and has a 30-foot power cord. The vacuum retails for $299.95 but is often sold for less at Amazon. After our analysis and observations, the Oreck Insight came out shining, with positive reviews in nearly every category we studied: 9.6 overall score; perfect 10s for how well it cleans hard floors and stairs; and 9.6 for ease of use and how well it cleans carpet. The best vacuums for hardwood floors. The pros. It’s hard to pick just one area where the Oreck Insight excels. Founded in 1963, Oreck Corporation is firmly rooted in its origins as a manufacturer of upright vacuum cleaners for hotels across the United States. The company has since expanded its product line to include steam mops, air purifiers, and a variety of other cleaning products for virtually any industry. Read more. Oreck is famous for its lightweight and powerful commercial floor cleaning appliances.
