Jenny of the Tetons by Kristiana Gregory; 4 editions; First published in 1989; Subjects: Fiction, Frontier and pioneer life, Indians of North America, Bannock Indians, Juvenile fiction, Shoshoni Indians, Accessible book, Protected DAISY, In library; Places: Teton Valley, Idaho; People: Richard Leigh (d. 1899). When the Hayden Survey of 1872 explored northwestern Wyoming, an Englishman named Richard "Beaver Dick" Leigh led the explorers into the Teton Valley and Jackson Hole. The title character of JENNY OF THE TETONS is an Indian (Native American) woman married to an 'Englishman,' Richard "Beaver Dick" Leigh, who is a most resourceful hunter and trapper (as well as a loving husband and father). Dick and Jenny have five children and take on the teenage narrator, as a foster child/mother's helper. The book, presented in the form of a journal Carrie keeps, documents the seasonal moves and very gritty life of living in the wild mountains of Montana/Idaho/Wyoming in the 1870s. I was reminded a bit of the Little House stories, except Carrie's
