I've heard about tax schemes that don't add up, that put our kids in -- in If we're willing to do what it takes now, the 21st century is going to be And for the sake of me, I can't figure out which one is which. TRUMP: believe me the world is peanuts by comparison. . . Not keeping the government open.
One: so that you can contribute more. And two: that hopefully we can not just understand other people more, but appreciate them more, and create the kinds of connections that can stop some of the challenges that we face today. They’re only going to get magnified by the very technology that connects us, because it’s making us intersect. That intersection doesn’t always create a view of “everybody now understands everybody, and everybody appreciates everybody.” I’ve had an obsession basically for 30 years, “What makes the difference in the quality of people...” How much uncertainty? Who knows what’s going to happen next? Kind of exciting. Like climbing up into a cave and doing that stuff all the way down there. Total variety and uncertainty. And it’s significant, isn’t it?
